New Wellness Center Marks First Phase of Rehab Facility’s Expansion

The first phase of the Rancho Rising 2020 project, a $418 million, multiphase construction, and renovation at Rancho Los Amigos National Rehabilitation Center near Los Angeles, was marked with the recent opening of the Don Knabe Wellness Center.

The wellness center is part of the Rancho Los Amigos health care community goal to increase both the patients’ and community’s accessibility to advanced rehabilitative technologies and wellness practices. It includes a fully equipped gym (see photo) with accessible exercise machines and will offer a variety of classes and activities for patients, caregivers and community members of different abilities, which improve balance, strength, endurance, and coordination regardless of physical ability. Classes promote relaxation, meditation, and creative exploration. The center also features a therapy pool with an underwater treadmill, which will be used by patients under medical supervision.

“Patients will have access to specialized equipment and programs to own their health and wellness at the Don Knabe Wellness Center,” says Jorge Orozco, CEO, Rancho Los Amigos. “The wellness center and other features of Rancho Rising 2020 reflect a new model for the future, one that empowers patients to stay at home and be active in their communities, while enabling the use of self-directed rehabilitation tools and treatments. The focus is on teaching strategies to achieve and sustain a healthy life,” he says.

A team of architects, designers, and contractors collaborated to complete Rancho Los Amigos’ new wellness center three months ahead of schedule. Key members of the design and build team include contractor McCarthy Building Companies, Inc., Newport; design architect SmithGroupJJR, Los Angeles; and architect of record, Taylor Design, Irvine.

The wellness center offers recovery and rehabilitation care for patients with adult and pediatric spinal cord injuries, brain injuries, orthopedic disabilities, strokes, neurological disorders, and physical and developmental disorders.

The Rancho Rising 2020 project includes renovation and extension of the Jacquelin Perry Institute, the existing inpatient hospital on the 212-acre campus, and construction of a new outpatient facility. The project also calls for construction of a new centralized entrance, wayfinding tower and a central plaza with a series of interconnected gardens offering places for patients and visitors to heal and relax.

One-of-a-kind, even among rehabilitation centers, the health care community transcends the typical “patient” label, creating a truly unique Rancho Los Amigos culture. Many former patients return to the campus to mentor patients who are learning to rebuild after a life-altering event. The design not only provides a place for high-quality care but also supports the spirit of inclusive community and continued involvement.

April is Alcohol Awareness Month

April is the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence’s and the Center for Disease Control and Prevention’s Alcohol Awareness Month, designed to elevate the awareness of excessive alcohol consumption as a health priority for the Nation.

Alcohol is the most commonly used addictive substance in the U.S.

- 17.6 million people or 1 in every 12 U.S. adults, suffer from alcohol abuse or dependence.

Drinking too much can harm your health.

- Excessive alcohol use led to approximately 88,000 deaths between 2006 and 2010.
- Further, excessive drinking was responsible for 1 in 10 deaths among working-age adults aged 20-64 years.
- The economic costs of excessive alcohol consumption in 2010 were estimated at $249 billion, or $2.05 a drink.

What is a “drink”?

In the United States, a standard drink contains 0.6 ounces of pure alcohol. Generally, this amount of pure alcohol is found in 12-ounces of beer (5% alcohol content), 5-ounces of wine (12% alcohol content), or 1.5-ounces of 80-proof (40% alcohol content) distilled spirits or liquor (e.g., gin, rum, vodka, whiskey).

What is excessive drinking?

Excessive drinking includes binge drinking, heavy drinking, and any drinking by pregnant women or people younger than age 21.

- Binge drinking, the most common form of excessive drinking, is defined as consuming four or more drinks during a single occasion for women and five or more drinks during a single occasion for men.
- Heavy drinking is defined as consuming eight or more drinks per week for women and 15 or more drinks per week for men.

What is moderate drinking?

The Dietary Guidelines for Americans defines moderate drinking as up to one drink per day for women and up to two drinks per day for men.

There are some people who should not drink any alcohol, including those who are:

- Pregnant or may be pregnant.
- Driving, planning to drive, or participating in other activities requiring skill, coordination, and alertness.
- Taking certain prescription or over-the-counter medications that can interact with alcohol.

Long-Term Health Risks

- High blood pressure, heart disease, stroke, liver disease, and digestive problems.
- Cancer of the breast, mouth, throat, esophagus, liver, and colon.
- Learning and memory problems.
- Mental health problems.
- Social problems.
- Alcohol dependence, or alcoholism.

For more than 40 years, 9-1-1 has served as the vital link between the American public and emergency services. Every year, fire departments nationwide join the United States Congress and the National Emergency Number Association in recognizing the month of April as National 9-1-1 Education Month.

During the month of April, the Los Angeles County Fire Department (LACoFD) promotes a month-long campaign of helping its four million residents in recognizing the importance of 9-1-1 and the role it plays in ensuring effective and efficient emergency response in times of crisis.

The LACoFD urges you to use 9-1-1 responsibly. In the event of an emergency, it is important to know what to do when calling 9-1-1. Here are a few tips that you can follow:

• Use 9-1-1 ONLY in emergency situations.
• Know your location when calling for help.
• Keep your phone locked when not in use to avoid calling 9-1-1 accidentally.
• Listen carefully, speak clearly and remain calm when speaking to a 9-1-1 dispatcher.
• Teach children how to properly use 9-1-1.
• DON’T hang up if you accidently dial 9-1-1; stay on the line and tell them.
• DON’T use 9-1-1 as an “information line.”
• DON’T call 9-1-1 for a tow truck or taxi; dispatchers cannot transfer callers.

Keep Property “In the Family”

If you own property and want to transfer it to a family member or leave it to a family member when you pass away, property tax implications are something to consider – especially when proper planning can save your heirs thousands of dollars every year. California tax law has a parent-to-child transfer exclusion (also known as “Proposition 58”) which enables a transfer of the parent’s primary residence to a child while excluding the property from reassessment. The net result means that the child can keep their parent’s current property assessment base – and their corresponding property tax amount.

Under specific circumstances, a grandparent may also take advantage of this exclusion and transfer to a grandchild without reassessment (known as “Proposition 193”).

Here are some general guidelines to consider:

- Each parent may also transfer the first $1 million of the full cash value of another property to their child without triggering a reassessment. There are significant limitations to this general rule.
- Your principal residence is the property where you would apply a homeowner’s exemption – the place where you actually live, not a rental or vacation property. Transfers of primary residences have no value limit.
- Transfers may be the result of a sale, gift, or inheritance. A transfer via a trust may also qualify for this exclusion.

There are several common mistakes that may hinder the parent-child exclusion, so it is always a good idea to consult with a lawyer when preparing a will or trust, or handling a decedent’s estate.

National Animal Care and Control Officer Appreciation Week
Department of Animal Care and Control

Did you know that on the second week of April, we honor all Animal Control Officers during National Animal Care and Control Officer Appreciation Week?

The Department of Animal Care and Control leads the way as the largest animal control agency in the United States. Our officers cover more than 4,084 square miles of cities, deserts, beaches, and mountains, from the Antelope Valley in the north County, to the Palos Verdes Peninsula in the south, as far east as the border of San Bernardino County, and west to Thousand Oaks.

The L.A. County Animal Control Officers (ACO) strive to be pillars for the communities they service, by providing quality animal control and rescue services 24 hours a day, seven days a week. “I came from an IT background and started working in the kennels and saw first-hand what the needs for the animals in my community were, and that motivated me to want to do more,” said Sgt. Alexander Mota.

Each day, our ACOs go out into the field to protect the lives of citizens of 47 contract cities, as well as unincorporated areas of the County. These dedicated men and women patrol busy streets to ensure public safety, conduct humane investigations when animal cruelty is suspected, and find shelter for thousands of homeless animals each year. They also provide emergency rescues during natural disasters, enforce all state and local animal control laws, as well as educate the public about responsible pet ownership through outreach and intervention. “There seems to be a discord from the general public in regards to proper education of the animal society. There are misguided interpretations of what proper care for an animal really is. Whether it be from what was told to them by a family member, friends, etc., they take that information for truth and a method of “research,” said Sgt. Justin Guzman.

We want to take this time to acknowledge all of our ACOs for their commitment and dedication to serving the community.
